

I am an Indiana resident who is extremely pleased with Indiana's "do not call" list. I oppose exemptions for banks or credit card companies or other firms with an "established" relationship. That does not mean I welcome phone calls. I'm glad to receive written mailed information, but if that's not pushy enough marketing for the financial industry, I don't see why my peace should be invaded because federal law is too weak. Thank you, please don't interfere with Indiana's law. DAVID VAPRIN - Indianapolis IN
